About the Book The history of Europe covers the peoples inhabiting that continent from prehistory to the present. After the decline of the city-states of ancient Greece, the Roman Empire came to dominate the entire Mediterranean basin up to AD 476, which was the start of the Middle Ages. From the 14th century there was a Renaissance of knowledge in science, art and theology. At the same time the Protestant Reformation set up Protestant churches in Germany, Scandinavia and England. Post 1800, the Industrial Revolution brought prosperity to Britain and spread through Western Europe. The main European powers established colonies throughout the Americas and Africa, and parts of Asia. While wars had been a constant throughout Europe for millennia, during the 20th century, World War I and World War II resulted in tens of millions of deaths.
